Corporate Social Responsibility Made Easy.

Selfless.ly, a certified B Corporation, is the first turnkey software for corporate social responsibility and community engagement. Our cloud-based platform was built for businesses of all sizes to create, manage, report, and expand its philanthropic impact by centralizing online giving, matching, volunteering, and in-kind contributions. We empower employees to interact with the causes they care about and drive purpose in the workplace. Selfless.ly is your partner to create authentic community impact.

Joshua and Zach's work in technology, business and nonprofits goes back over 10 years. After experiencing the difficulty with managing corporate social responsibility first hand, they wanted to build technology that removes the barriers that prevent companies engaging with the community. Now more than ever, nonprofits are facing growing difficulty in finding new financial resources and volunteer support. After Joshua founded his own nonprofit back in 2015, he understood the growing need to make partnerships easier.

"Employees and consumers are looking at how brands they know are helping their communities as well as how they are responding to issues going on in the world. It's not that the business community doesn't care, it can be challenging and expensive to coordinate community support - and we want to eliminate that barrier. We see how philanthropy and social responsibility is evolving and built a platform that supports this. This is not something a large company or charity can execute anymore. It takes a nimble technology and a team of empathys to create the change that is required. We are at the forefront of this and I could not be more excited about it."
